Report on the Third Free Health Camp

Marthala Village, Paschim Medinipur, West Bengal
Organised by Save The Environment (STE)
Date: 12 September 2026
Time: 9:00 AM to approximately 6:00 PM

1. Introduction

Save The Environment (STE) organised its Third Free Health Camp at Marthala Village, Paschim Medinipur, West Bengal, on 12 September 2026. The initiative was undertaken as part of STE's continuing commitment to promoting community health and extending essential healthcare services to underserved and economically disadvantaged communities.

The camp commenced at 9:00 AM and continued until approximately 6:00 PM.

2. Objectives

The principal objective of the health camp was to provide accessible medical care to villagers with limited access to healthcare facilities. Particular emphasis was placed on follow-up consultations and continuity of treatment for patients who had been examined during STE's earlier health camps.

The initiative sought to ensure that patients requiring continued medical attention were not deprived of necessary follow-up care, medicines and medical guidance.

3. Services Provided

The following services and facilities were made available during the camp:

- Medical consultations and follow-up examinations
- Continued medical care and treatment
- Basic diagnostic services
- Distribution of essential medicines
- Patient care and assistance
- Lunch and refreshments for children and local support staff

The services were provided with the objective of addressing immediate healthcare needs while also supporting continuity of treatment for previously identified patients.

4. Support and Contributions

The successful conduct of the health camp was made possible through the generous financial and logistical support extended by donors, well-wishers and friends of STE. Their contributions enabled STE to arrange essential medicines, diagnostic support, patient care, food and other requirements associated with the camp.

STE places on record its sincere appreciation and gratitude to all those who contributed towards this humanitarian initiative. Their support has enabled the organisation to translate its commitment to community welfare into meaningful action at the grassroots level.

5. Special Acknowledgement

STE expresses its special appreciation to |

Mr. Subhankar and Mrs. Chhanda Basu for their dedicated efforts and active involvement in organising and coordinating the health camp.

Their commitment, personal initiative and sustained support contributed significantly to the successful conduct of the programme. STE acknowledges their valuable contribution towards this endeavour to extend healthcare services to the local community.

6. Way Forward and Appeal for Continued Support

The successful completion of the Third Free Health Camp has reaffirmed the importance of sustained healthcare interventions in underserved rural communities. The need for medical consultation, medicines, diagnostics and follow-up treatment continues beyond a single health camp.

STE therefore intends to continue its efforts to organise periodic health camps and follow-up medical services for communities requiring such support.

In this regard, STE earnestly appeals to its donors, well-wishers, institutional partners and members of the wider community to continue extending their support. Sustained contributions will enable STE to expand the reach of its healthcare initiatives, provide continuity of treatment to existing patients and extend medical assistance to additional communities in need.

STE also welcomes support in the form of medicines, diagnostic services, medical equipment, logistics and other resources that can contribute to strengthening these community healthcare initiatives.

7. Conclusion

The Third Free Health Camp at Marthala Village represents another meaningful step in STE's continuing efforts towards community health, social welfare and service to underserved populations.

The initiative would not have been possible without the collective efforts of the organisers, medical and support personnel, donors, volunteers.
